CULTURED

This Month, Show Up for These 12 Unmissable New York Solo Shows by Women Artists

Sarah Charlesworth, “Desire and Seduction” (Installation View), 2025. Image courtesy of the Estate of Sarah Charlesworth and Paula Cooper.

Search #cultured on See Saw Gallery Guide anytime to add CULTURED*’s picks to your custom map.*

“Desire and Seduction” by Sarah Charlesworth

When: Through March 29

Where: Paula Cooper Gallery

Why It’s Worth A Look: Through photographic cut-outs of hovering, sensual objects and bodies, the late conceptual artist Sarah Charlesworth made desire tangible. Among the array of materials on view at Paula Cooper are silk gowns, sculpted torsos, and flickering candles, all set against pitch-black backdrops.

Know Before You Go: Charlesworth attributed each color to a separate symbol of desire: red for sexual passion, black for dominance or death, green for natural growth, yellow for material value, or blue for spiritual or metaphorical desire.